PEACE COVENANT STANDS

U. S. ARMY REDUCED TO 2 MILLION

DEMOBILIZATION HAS MADE RAPID PROGRESS
SAYS GEN. MARCH.

1,980,506 MEN
ON APRIL 8

Since Nov. 11, 686,114 Men Have Sailed For Home From France.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 12.—Demobilization has reduced the total strength of the American army below two million. Complete reports to April 8, announced today by General March showed the aggregate strength on that date to be 1,980,506.

Since November 11, 686,114 men have sailed for home and up to April 8th, 605,772 has been landed. There have been returned to civil life, 1,701,469 officers and men, fifty per cent of the officers and 46 per cent of the men who were in the army when the armistice was signed. Discharge orders now total 1,925,000.

BANKS OF THE NATION WILL CHECK MONEY ALIENS TAKE AWAY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, April 12.—All the savings banks in the United States are asked in letters sent out today by the Federal Reserve Bank to check the money taken from this country by thousands of aliens who are selling for their own needs with millions of American dollars.

Owing to bolshevik propaganda, the association says "an alarming" proportion of the fourteen million foreign-born population in the United States are selling their liberty bonds and withdrawing their money from the banks.

It is estimated that about 1,300,000 cannot be stopped from going and that they will carry with them nearly $4,000,000,000 or four-fifths of the total currency in circulation and in reserve in the United States before the war.

It is estimated that unless vigorous action is taken over six millions of these aliens may be lured abroad by this propaganda, taking with them cash equal to the present currency reserve of the United States. This is certainly serious.

An accompanying letter says that "it is for the purpose of checking these people and their collective wealth within reach upon their native soil that the most insidious of all bolshevik propaganda is being practiced to entice them to return to their native land and to withdraw their money from the banks and real estate, draw your savings and bank accounts, return to your native country and enjoy the fruits of unrestricted personal liberty."

PRICES GOING UP They Can't Stop WATER STILL FREE

(BY HARRIETTE WHEATON)

You may live on cracker float, if you want to die young.

Water is still free in most places if you are not particular about the cup. Just the crackers have a chance to double you up in the pit of your pocket.

And as for pickled pig's feet, well ask the butcher about them.

Perhaps "peace" means peace, everyone fights with joy. They all lost their head and mind, lost their equilibrium. Because according to reports received by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington, the retail price of the all articles of food was 2 per cent higher Dec. 15, 1918, than Nov. 15, 1918.

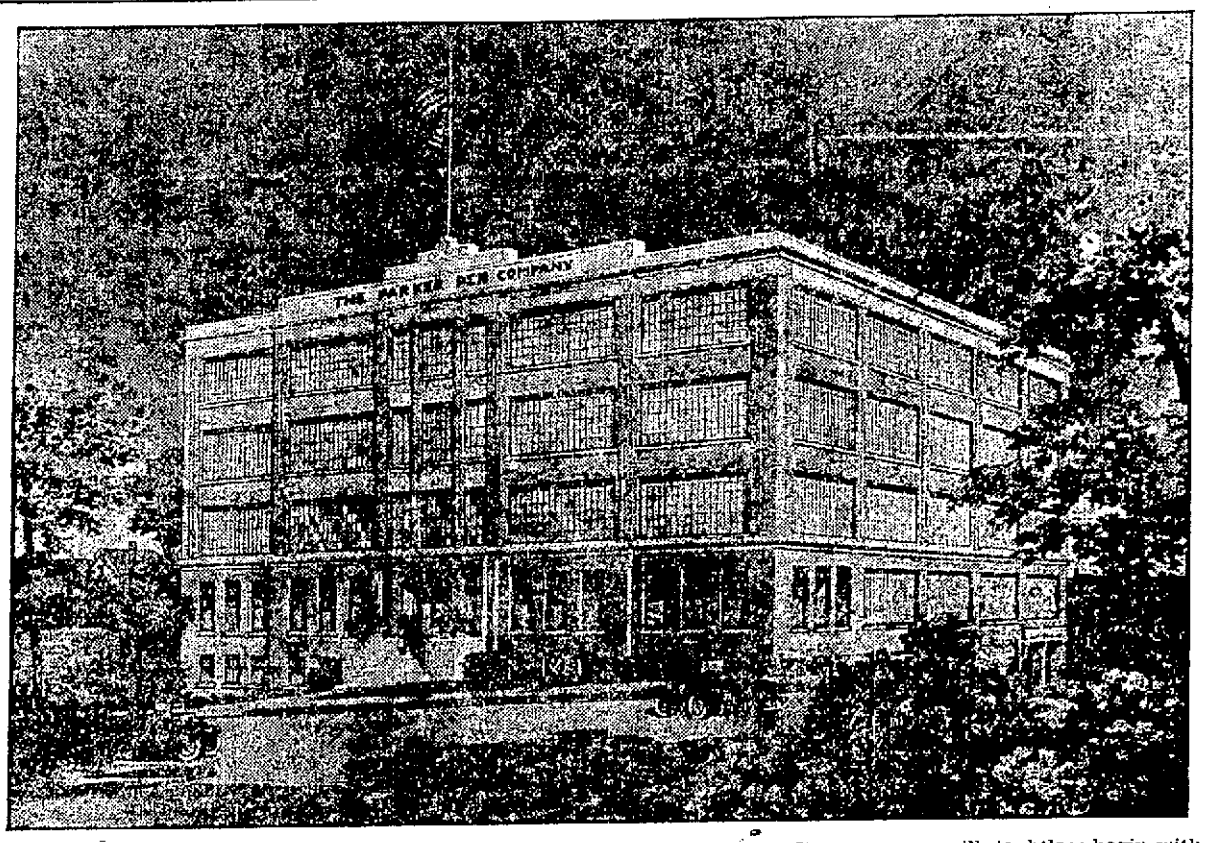

Dairy products went up, strictly fresh eggs and butter each doing their best. Little white cheese and milk kept the run to come in for second and third ribbons. Still 14 out of 25 articles went down. Who would have thought it? But "twice in vain."

Going down, express to the subway. No chance for mere man to hop on. So he has to go up. He reaches the tenth floor. Food prices weren't there. "Prices are up in the air," the complacent floor walker has the nerve to announce. More man gives up. Too much for him. So the clouds envelop the soaring prices.

"Oh, my, no, they are not coming down any," said a Janesville grocer this morn. "This is no time to get married. A few more days and you are all gone away high, canned fruits especially, and dried fruits, too. Butter, eggs, and lard are up again. They came down a wee bit, but didn't help much. If you don't like prunes. They are 7 or 8 cents higher than they were last fall, he says.

But still we live. Everybody looks well and happy, and no one is advertising that they have found somebody's lost weight.

PARKER PEN'S $125,000 NEW HOME

CONSTRUCTION OF A $125,000 office and factory building for the Parker Pen company will doubtless begin within three weeks and work will be rushed so the structure may be ready for occupancy by fall, George S. Parker stated today. The plans and specifications, as drawn by Frank A. Carpenter, Rockford architect, have been approved and he is now ready to accept contractors' bids. The building will be erected at the corner of Court and South Division streets on the old Valentine property. First steps toward removing and wrecking the building situated there at present will be taken within two weeks.

Plans of Mr. Parker, as announced February 18, have been changed somewhat. The building will consist of four stories, exclusive of a basement and sub-basement, instead of three stories as was at first planned. The estimated cost is $125,000, instead of $100,000. The boilers will be installed in the sub-basement.

On the second floor will be located a rest and recreation room for employees. A restaurant will be installed in connection with this. The rooms will be fitted up to present a home-like appearance.

With larger quarters, the company expects to add equipment to manufacture gold pens in addition to the rubber holders. Approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space will be available for work.

The building will be the last word in factory construction. It will be fire-proof, made of reinforced concrete and brick veneer.

The building will be virtually a six-story structure. The automatic department will be located in the basement with the office on the first floor, the fitting department and recreational rooms, on the second floor, and the manufacturing division on the third and fourth.

A novel feature of the plan is the fact that employees' suggestions, which were requested by Mr. Parker, have been embodied in the building. They have taken a great interest in the new building and a number of valuable suggestions were received.

THOUSANDS SLAIN BY JAPS IN MASSACRES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

San Francisco, Calif., April 12.—Japanese began what was described as a "massacre" in Korea at Seoul, the capital, during a demonstration March 28, according to a cablegram received here today by the Korean National Association from a native Christian pastor.

The cablegram was filed from Shanghai. According to officials of the Korean National Association here, the information was sent by messenger from Seoul to Shanghai by the association's representatives.

Japan began massacring in Korea. Over a thousand unarmed people killed in Seoul during three hours demonstration on twenty-eighth. Japanese troops, fire brigades and civilians are ordered shooting, beatings, looting people mercilessly through out Korea. Killed several thousand since twenty-seventh.

"Churches, schools, homes of leaders destroyed. Women made naked and beaten before crowds, especially leaders' families; the imprisoned being severely tortured."

YANK DIVISION WHICH MUTINIED IDENTIFIED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 12.—Company 1 of the 330th Infantry was identified today by General March as the unit which recently refused to return to the front line trenches in the Archangel sector, when ordered to do so by its officers.

The supplementary report to the department said it was worthy of note that the questions put by the men of Company 1, to their officers, were "identical to the questions which bolshevik propaganda advised that they put to them."

The department has not received copies of the bolshevik leaflets containing these questions and General March said he was extremely anxious to secure one. "In my long service," said General March, "I don't recall another instance where American soldiers did not want to go into a fight. They always have said 'lead us to it.'"

A report from L'Amundau dated March 25, said the Onda bridge on the railroad south of Murmansk had been rebuilt, restoring communication with the southernmost post of the allies.

59 VETS OF WORLD WAR ORGANIZE

FORM LOCAL BRANCH OF AMERICAN ASSOCIATION, STATE BODY.

ANOTHER MEETING
TO BE HELD SOON

Organization Will Be Temporary
Until Others Have Returned.

Fifty-nine men who have served Uncle Sam in the late war last night at the armory declared their intention to form a local branch of the American War Veterans Association, an organization which has been started in this state.

Another meeting will be held at the armory perhaps next Friday night when those who have signed their desire to join the organization, along with others who are eligible and who were not present last night will sign the charter.

Will Wait for Others
The organization will be kept in a temporary state until all the men overseas have returned. This will be done so that all who have been in the army, navy or marines, will have an opportunity to become members.

Col. John Turner, formerly of the 125th Infantry, Col. Salsman and Col. Cousins, both formerly with the 32nd division told the gathering of the aims of the organization.

The preliminary state association is being formed with the purpose of aiding soldiers, sailors and marines who fought in the great war and who will need help when they return to civil life, said Col. Turner. "Every man no matter what his rank, who has an honorable discharge from the service is eligible. Many men will come back crippled and will have to have temporary relief. Such an organization could give temporary aid and save those brave fellows from embarrassment."

Points out Value
Col. Salsman pointed out the value of such an association from a sentimental point of view.

"By organizing all the men who fought in the great war, we can perpetuate the comradeship which has been established since the call to arms was sounded."

"We will proceed along the lines of organization of the G. A. R. By using their by-laws and constitutions we can profit by the experience they have gained in the last fifty odd years. We can side-step some of the mistakes that organization made when they first formed."

Col. Cousins pointed out the advantages of banding together the veterans of the war. He told of the legislation which was before the present legislature which if enacted would benefit the returning soldiers.

A letter was sent by Victor Hemminger, temporary secretary, to Senator Cunningham, offering the sympathy of the returning soldiers.

Peace Plenipotentiaries Are Named by Canada

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Ottawa, Ont., April 12.—N. W. Rowell, president of the Canadian peace conference, today announced that Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Foster, C. J. Doherty and Arthur Sifton have been appointed plenipotentiaries to sign the peace conference on behalf of Canada. This marks a new step in the development of the status of Canada and the other overseas dominions.

The chief party to the signing of the peace agreement is the United Kingdom and Ireland, the overseas dominions and India. The order in council called by the minister is a request to King George to issue a commission to each of the four Canadians as representatives of Canada to sign the peace treaty.

Kinubeatit? Kumon, Mame Let's Blow!

(BY HARRIETTE WHEATON)

THESE are diamonds and diamonds. And what's this whinnies? don't know about getting and not getting them isn't much.

But the diamond out on the edge of Janesville with at least nine men running wild over it has too complicated a cut.

We watched them the other day out around the majority corner of that four squared diamond cut from Mother Earth. They were all bats. They all told us to come out to watch the ball. But there are balls and balls.

At the Bull, Ataboy!

Looked as if they were going to a fancy dress ball and didn't want any of us to recognize them by their dress. Talk about the Red Cross old clothes drive. We guess a bunch of them drove out to the fair ground where they were all dressed up some day if they can find another nick or two. There still is hope. Its kind a doubtful what they will wear tomorrow.

Ataboy! Ataboy! Ataboy!

And the way they ran around from one little bald spot in the ground to another like they were chasing rabbits. And they were always waiting to hit somebody, just so spiteful like.

Some of the men were pretty good runners but others were all the time falling down. Nobody cared just so they hopped that little hop. He called him. The man to me. (He called him. The man to me. He was already a cool day so I didn't try to use him any). He said "that's slipping in it. And then he would get up and hold his head. Then the next minute he would be so changed, terrible moody he was, and he would be saying things that I can't tell you in print.

Home, Sweet Home.

The worst thing about the way these fellows play baseball is the way they talk about home. They are always wanting to get home. They just run for home like a crazy man. If you get there everyone is so tickled and cheers for them, but if they miss the last lap, well it is just like a rainy day in April settles down all around.

Must be awful nice to be their parents.

REV. FRANK SHERIDAN SUCCUMBS AFTER AN ILLNESS OF 2 MONTHS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Rev. Father Frank J. Sheridan, 55 of St. Patrick's church, passed away at the home of his parents, Friday evening after an illness of two months.

Father Sheridan was born in Janesville May 10, 1861 and was educated at St. Patrick's parochial school. At the age of 14 he entered the local high school, which he attended for one year. In the fall of the year 1904 he entered St. Francis seminary, Milwaukee.

Ordained to Priesthood.
After ten years of study, Father Sheridan was ordained to the priesthood June 18, 1916. His first mass was said in St. Patrick's church June 20.

Assigned to the Milwaukee diocese by Archbishop Messmer, he took up his work in St. Rose's church, Milwaukee, where he labored until the time of his death as an assistant pastor.

Besides his grief stricken parents he leaves to mourn his loss two sisters Mary of this city, and Katherine of Milwaukee and two brothers, Leut. John E. Sheridan, recently returned from France and James of Janesville.

Titled of His Friends.
Loved and respected, Father Sheridan was the idol of all who knew him. His scholarly qualities, his calmness, his most brilliant young priests, his lovable nature will cause his memory to live long in the hearts of his many friends and associates.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 10:30 from St. Patrick's church. The body will be taken to St. Patrick's church Monday, where it may be viewed by friends. Friends are requested not to send flowers.

German Housewives Get First U. S. Flour

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, April 12.—Housewives of Berlin have been supplied with the first installment of the flour which recently arrived from the United States, the allotment being at the rate of one-half pound for each person.

The price fixed by the authorities is two marks, twenty pfennig the pound, which is seven times the amount that was paid in peace times.

The food commissioner declared the high price set is necessary, as the native supplies are rapidly diminishing and conservation of the imported flour is sought to prevent a later rise in the price of bread for the production of which the new supplies will be needed.

SINGLE CHANGE IS MADE

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING
MARKS CONCLUSION OF DISCUSSIONS.

WILSON ON JOB
UNTIL MIDNIGHT

Bavaria is Excluded From Agreement by Big Four Conferees.

BULLETIN

Paris, April 12.—The text of the league of nations covenant will be made public in a few days, says the official announcement of the league of nations commission regarding last night's session. Except for the technical task of bringing the French and English texts into accord, the covenant, the announcement states, is ready for a plenary session of the peace conference.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Paris, April 12.—With the single exception of the amendment specifically exempting the Monroe Doctrine from being affected by the covenant, no vital change was made by the league of nations commission in that document in its meetings on Thursday and Friday nights.

Last night's meeting marked the conclusion of the consideration of the covenant.

Discussion lasted four hours. President Wilson remaining until the session closed, after midnight.

The covenant as the commission left it did not include a section granting Japan's request for the recognition of racial equality, and neither was a section introduced concerning the request of France for an international military general staff. Both Japan and France announced that they reserved the right to bring up amendments before a plenary session of the conference.

As it now stands the covenant contains 26 sections.

Bavaria is Excluded.
Berlin, April 12.—With the dispatch from Hamburg to the Vossische Zeitung says the German government has announced that the entente powers have been informed that Bavaria is not to be included in the conclusion of peace and that measures will be taken to prevent any entente foodstuffs from reaching Bavaria.

Vote for Adoption.
Paris, April 12.—The French delegation on the league of nations commission voted for the adoption of the text of the covenant when the commission endorsed it last night, but made reservations as to two points, first, the organization and effective control of the manufacture of munitions, and second, the institution of permanent military control.

To Finish Boundaries.
Paris, April 12.—The council of four experts to finish examination of the boundary questions in dispute Monday and to summon the German delegates to Versailles in the course of next week, according to Le Journal today.

MEETING IS HELD BY THE LOANI BAND

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

About 75 women were served at supper last night at a meeting of the Loani Band held in the Congregational church. Mrs. Claire Capelle and Mrs. N. A. Hedberg were the hostesses assisted by Mrs. McGowan and Mrs. H. Adams. Several young women helped to serve.

Mrs. Craig, the president, presided at the meeting, held after the supper, and as opening number Miss Clara Shavano sang "The Bluebirds" and "Hymns of the Old Church Choir" both of which were cleverly illustrated by Miss Florence Jamieson, as they were sung.

Two Debut ladies were guests of honor last evening and one of them, Mrs. Way, gave an informal talk on the work of the Schaeffer school, located at Cleveland, Ohio. This is a girls' school.

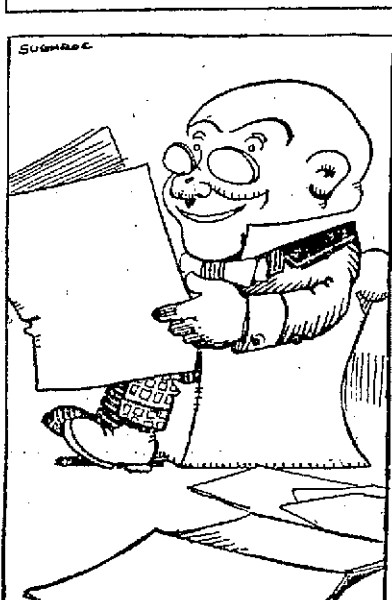

MEMORIAL SERVICE SET FOR APRIL 29

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, April 12.—The memorial service in honor of the late President Charles A. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, April 29th, in the university gymnasium. The speakers will be Prof. T. C. Chamberlain, of the University of Chicago, Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, and President E. A. Birge of the university. The service will be public.

A memorial booklet, to be printed for the service, will contain a sketch of the life of Dr. Van Hise, his picture and a poem of tribute. All living members of Dr. Van Hise's class, which was graduated in 1879, will be among the guests at the service.

Brave Americans

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Meet some of them face to face. The Gazette has obtained for its readers a series of portraits of American soldier heroes decorated for valor on the battlefield. These pictures were painted by Joseph Cummings Chase, official portrait painter of the American Expeditionary Force, sent by the war college to make portraits of principal generals. Each one of the boys performed an act of conspicuous bravery. With the portrait of each hero is a short story telling of his act.

These are the lads who made history and who set America's standards of dash and courage higher than ever. You'll want to get acquainted with them. The first portrait will appear Monday.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"No one is so altogether right that he can say the other fellow is altogether wrong."
—Burt Moses.

"The Musings of Moses" have long been a popular feature in "Newspaperdom," a magazine published in the interest of publishers. Mr. Moses is an advertising man of national fame, as well as a writer who possesses the ability to put on paper thoughts which stick like a tack, and the above quotation is one of them.

There is a difference between conceit and confidence. Every man owes it to himself to have confidence in his own ability. If he fails to possess it, he is soon classed as a man who is not certain of himself and he becomes a traller at the rear end of the procession. It matters not what the channel of work, the world has a place for men who do things and who never question confidence in their own ability.

The boy who learns a trade, acquires with knowledge and experience, confidence in himself, and by the time he is ready to strike out for himself, there is no doubt in his own mind about his ability to render faithful and efficient service, in any task he may undertake. Confidence begets confidence. We sit complacently in our Pullman seat, as the long overland train leaves the little station in the foothills and commences the long mountain climb ahead. We stop at the summit and with steam shut off, and breaks set, slip down the other side to the valley, with no thought of the man at the throttle. We have never met him but we have confidence in him because he has confidence in himself and his ability has long since been tested to the satisfaction of the company which employs him.

There is nothing unusual about this engineer, in whose hands we place our destiny. There are thousands of other men, doing the same kind of work, who are equally efficient, and so it happens that groups of men enjoy the confidence of the world at large with no questions asked. The industrial world is crowded with expert artisans and their ability is never questioned.

Commercial and professional life are different, because the work of the brain enters more largely into these callings, and because education is never finished. And then there are so many misfits that the old experiment of trying to fit round pegs into square holes is still a favorite pastime. A preacher, a lawyer, or a doctor may have unlimited confidence in his own ability, and fail to inspire confidence in the public. In some cases failure is due to a mistaken calling, and a life, which might have been successful, in some other line, is wasted.

The boy who learns a trade, usually graduates from an apprenticeship. He may become expert through experience, but the knowledge acquired in the earlier years, never leaves him. Education, in the other callings, under discussion, simply commences graduation, which in no sense may be compared to an apprenticeship. The text book is the foundation, often more theoretical than practical, but knowledge of how to do things, comes through observation and experience, the two great teachers who take charge of us when we step across the threshold of active life.

Mr. Moses wrote an article, a time ago, on the fallacy of a college education as a sole dependence for success. His friend, Harry Tipper, a college man and an author of textbooks, took exception and replied somewhat caustically. And Mr. Moses came back in part as follows:

"Dear Mr. Tipper: Of all the letters that come to me, yours of the 4th, I think, was the most welcome. You know that while we are both headed in the same direction, we have been traveling over different highways. Our methods of doing a thing are widely apart, and the difference in our environments is striking. You move in an academic atmosphere. What you say is said in faultless syntax, and much of your knowledge is above and beyond the nub. You go down to fundamentals. You take the human mind to pieces, and put each piece in its proper pigeon hole. You take yourself—you take life—seriously, or appear to do so. You see more in a college education than I do because you have experienced the thing, and I haven't. The reason the college means so much to you is because you have survived it, which is something so rare as to be remarkable, for few men are able to survive an academic education. Usually it blights their lives because they lean upon it too hard and fail to see how little it is worth after they get it. The biggest men today in business and in advertising never went to college at all.

"My education was accumulated in a printing office. What I know has come from rubbing up against the world and the men in it. You can rub off a better education from men generally than from rubbing against textbooks and professors. At least, so it seems to me. The professor has his place, and so have his books. Taken in moderation and with a dash of salt to make the mind palatable, they are useful in setting the molecules of the mind in motion. The chief indictment against the professor is that he talks about a thing that he never worked at. What does the man wearing a mortar board and an academic regalia know about looking a pay-roll in the eye every Saturday? What does he know about suppressing cliques in his organization and keeping harmony among his hands? What does he know about setting traps for the mice that eat holes in his oats bin, or the rats that carry off his profits? What does he know about the diplomacy necessary to keep his foremen in the right mood to keep the help under them so that their eyes will be fixed upon their work rather than upon the clock? What does the professor know about advertising when he never had to dig into his pantaloons pockets to pay the bills that the advertising agent sends with such precise regularity every month?

"Now, then, Harry, all these sad experiences have been mine. I know the thing from having touched the live wires with my calloused hands. I know that many things the professors say are highly charged with inaccuracy. I know they are pipe-dreamers—that they partake of bhang—that they 'see things'—that they utter untruths from ignorance rather than from intent. I know a textbook worker is not worth three whoops in the home of Mephistopheles, while the worker who got his education from doing the thing is worth more than par any day."

There are more misfits in commercial life than among the professions, and that is the cause of so many business failures. Not a lack of confidence, because every man in business thinks that he knows all about how to run it, but a lack of ability. Honesty is necessary to the success of any business, but honesty is only one requirement. Good management and salesmanship, which so many merchants lack, are indispensable, while enterprise and ambition are equally important.

The thing we call conceit is an inheritance of birthright. It develops very early in our career, and sometimes stays with us through the long journey. The average youngster likes to show off. He performs stunts and says to his playmates, "See what I can do?" That's conceit, and it develops with the years until the school age is reached, and then—unless the boy is so unfortunate as to be placed in a private school—he enters the arena where conceit has no standing, and where the rough corners are knocked off without ceremony.

Sketches From Life -- By Temple

"One A. M. and All Is Well"

The playground is a great leveler. The boy discovers for the first time that talk is cheap and that deeds are the only thing which count, and unless he makes good, he soon becomes the laughing stock of his fellows, and conceit fades away. Fortunate the man who learns this important lesson early in life, because the world is more exacting than the playground and the "conceited ass" finds but little sympathy.

There are some men, however, who never learn by experience, and so we find in every community, a small class of people of pronounced convictions, who know it all. It is useless to argue with them because they are "set" in their beliefs, and nothing can change them. The man who never changes his mind, because he knows he is right, may count one, on the census report, but he soon becomes an echo in the active world about him.

This class of people sometimes annoy the church. "Come occupy a pinnacle, and say to the common herd about them, 'Come up and enjoy the higher altitudes or you will be everlastingly lost.' They are critics of the most critical sort, and the narrow environment from which they developed, furnishes a standard of living which is absolutely right. It excludes all sorts of games and harmless amusements, and is so repulsive that their influence is nil.

The religious world today has but little time for conceit, in the church. It is fast coming to realize that its highest mission is service to humanity, and that the sanctuary is a place for rest and worship. The notion no longer prevails that Sunday is the work day for the church, and so Christian people everywhere explore the highways and byways six days in the week, seeking opportunities for service, and meet together on Sunday for worship and inspiration.

One of the great American churches has the plan well in hand to take over the saloon buildings the first of July, and run them, as heretofore, without the booze, for the benefit of an army of men who have long spent their evenings at the saloon because of the hearty welcome, and good fellowship which made the place attractive. The church believes that these social features can be maintained without intoxicants, and so an effort will be made to meet the man on the street more than half way. It will succeed, because this is service of a high order and the Master will approve.

Confidence without conceit is one of the mighty forces which holds the old world steady. It is a grace which all of us may possess, if we will. Shall we cultivate it and contribute to the good of humanity?

THE CROWN OF SERVICE

Never mind the heights of glory never mind the distant goals; We may strive for them and miss them and it will not harm our souls.

It's the many petty failures that should trouble every man; Are we willing to be helpful when we should and when we can?

Never mind the mountain summit, all life's beauty isn't there. All success is not in standing where the many never fare.

And the things that ought to vex us, As we journey on life's way, Are the kindly words of comfort and of cheer we've failed to say.

It's the failure to be honest and the failure to be true, And our blindness to the many little deeds that we could do, That would smooth the way for others and would break the clouds of doubt.

Not the big and selfish failures that we ought to fret about.

We may never climb the mountain, we may never raise to fame, We may fail to win distinction, but earth's joys are ours to claim; And he wins the crown of service who has helped when'er he can.

Never failed in deeds of kindness, never failed to be a man.

Be Sure It's Worth It.

Who would boast a victory that cost no strategy and no careful disposition of the forces? But let a man be very sure that the city is worth the siege.—R. Marvel.

"Was it up that far?" demanded Jones.
"They were hatched just about a hundred yards below Mr. Curtis' property, on the off side of the road. I hadn't any more'n got to our front gate when I heard some one running in the road up there behind me. 'Fore I knowed what was happenin', bang went a gun. I almost jumped out'n my boots. The runnin' had stopped. 'The horses was rarin' an' tearin' so I thought I'd—'"
"Where'd the shot come from?" demanded Jones.
"Up the road some'eres, I couldn't swear just where. Musta' been up by the road that cuts in to Green Fancy. So I thought I'd hustle in an' see if pa was awake, an' git my gun. Jest then pa stuck his head out'n the window an' yelled what the hell's the matter. You butcher life I sung out who I was mighty quick, 'cause pa's purty sly with a gun an' I didn't want him takin' me fer burglars sneakin' around the house. While we wuz talkin' there one of the horses started out way lickety-split, an' in about two seconds it went by us. It was purty dark, but we see plain as day that there was a man in the saddle, bendin' low over the horse's neck and shoutin' to it. We waited a couple o' minutes, wonderin' what to do, an' listenin' to the horse gittin' furrer and furrer away in the direction of the cross-roads. Then 'way down there by the pike we heard another shot. Right then an' then pa said he'd put on his clothes an' we'd set out to see what it was all about.
"Well, pa come out with my gun an' his'n an' we walks up to where I seen the horses. Shore 'nough, one of 'em was still hitched to the fence, an' 't'her was gone. We stood around a minute or two examin'in' the horse an' then pa says let's go up the road a ways an' see if we c'n see anything. An' by gosh, we hadn't gone more'n fifty feet afore we come plumb on a man layin' in the middle of the road. Pa shook him an' he didn't let out a sound. He was warm, but dead'n a tombstone. I wuz fer leavin' him there till we'd git the corner, but pa says no. We'd carry him down to our porch an' lay him there, so's he'd be out o' danger. I jumps on Polly an' lights up fer here, Mr. Jones, to telephone up to Saint Liz fer the sheriff an' the coroner, not givin' a dang what I run into on the way. Polly shielded somethin' terrible jest afore we got to the pike an' I come durned near bein' throwed. An' right there 'side the road was this feller, all in a heap. Thinks I, you poor cuss, you must 'a' tried to stop that feller on hossback an' he plunked you. That accounted fer the second shot. The thing that worries all of us is did the same man do the

TO REBUILD YOUR STRENGTH
Abundance of Rich Food in Father John's Medicine Makes it Most Valuable Tonic

Safe to Take Because It Contains No Alcohol or Dangerous Drugs.
The extra strain to which we are all exposed during this spring is always a source of danger if the system is weakened or run-down. Many children, as well as older people, do not get "enough" food for the nourishment which they need to build up the vital, resisting energy with which to withstand severe weather and fall easy victims to disease germs.
With a proven history of more than sixty years' service as a food tonic, builder, rich in abundant nourishment, Father John's Medicine builds new, vital energy.
Of very great food value as proven by expert chemical tests, the nourishment in Father John's Medicine is actually taken up by the system and turned into new flesh and strength to resist disease. All the family can use this old-fashioned, pure and wholesome prescription with safety because it is guaranteed free from dangerous drugs in any form and it is absolutely non-alcoholic.

shootin', or was there two or 'em, one walkin' down the cross-roads?"
"Must have been two," said Jones, thoughtfully. "The same man couldn't have got down there ahead of him, that's sure. Did anybody go up to Green Fancy to make inquiries?"
"Twassn't necessary. Mr. Curtis heard the shootin' an' jest before we left he sent a man out to see what it was all about. The old skeezicks that's been drivin' his car lately come down half-dressed. He said nothin' out of the way had happened up at Green Fancy."
"It's most mysterious," said Barnes, glancing round the circle of awed faces. "There must have been some one lying in wait for these men, and with a very definite purpose in mind."
"Strikes me," said Jones, "that these two men were up to some kind of dirty work themselves, else why did they say they were goin' to Spanish Falls? They were queer actin' men, I'll have to say that."
His eyes met Barnes' and there was a queer light in them.
"You don't happen to know anything about this, do you, Mr. Barnes?" he demanded, suddenly.

CHAPTER V.
The Farm-Boy Tells a Ghastly Story and an Irishman Enters.
Barnes stared. "What do you mean?" he demanded sharply.
"I mean just what I said. What do you know about this business?"
"How should I know anything about it?"
"Well, we don't know who you are, nor what your profession is here, nor what your real profession is. That's why I ask the question."
"I see," said Barnes, after a moment. He grasped the situation and he admitted to himself that Jones had cause for his suspicions. "It has occurred to you that I may be a detective or a secret service man, isn't that the case? Well, I am neither. Did you know any more about these two men, Mr. Jones, than you know about me?"
"I don't know anything about 'em."
"What was their business?"
"Mr. Jones was lookin' for a place to bring his daughter who has consumption. He didn't want to take her to a regular consumptive community, he said, an' so he was lookin' for a quiet place where she wouldn't be associatin' with lungers all the time. That was his business, Mr. Barnes, an' I guess you'd call it respectable, wouldn't you?"
"Perfectly. But why should he be troubled by my presence here?"
"Miss Plunket was put an end to the discussion in a most effectual manner. 'Oh, for the Lord's sake, cut it out! Wait till he's dead, can't you?' she whispered fiercely. 'You've got all the time in the world to talk, and he hasn't more than ten minutes left to breathe unless that rube doctor gets here pretty soon. I think he's going feebly, rather ghastly light."

"Would you like a little brandy?" inquired Barnes, as he sat down limply in the chair he pulled out for her. "I have a flask upstairs in my—"
"Never touch it," she said. "I'm all right. My legs wobble a little but— Sit down Mr. Barnes. I've got something to say to you and I'd better say it now, because it may come in pretty handy for you later on. Don't let those women come in here, Dilly. "This afternoon I walked up in the woods back of the tavern to go over some lines in a new piece we are to do later on—God knows where I was sitting. Room's windows were plainly visible. I saw Room standing at a window looking toward the cross-roads with a pair of field-glasses. Every once in awhile he would turn to Paul, who stood beside him with a notebook, and say something to him. Paul wrote it down. Then he would look again, turning the glasses this way and that. Suddenly my eyes almost popped out of my head. Paul had gone away from the window. He came back and he had a couple of revolvers in his hands. They stood there for a few minutes carefully examining the fresh cartridges. Just as I was about to start down to the house—I was a little after six o'clock, and getting awfully dark and overcast—Room took up the glasses again. He seemed to be excited and called his companion. Paul grabbed the glasses and looked down the road. They both became very much excited, pointing and gesticulating, and taking turn about with the glasses."
"About six o'clock, you say?" said Barnes, greatly interested.
"It was a quarter after six when I got back to the house. I spoke to Mr. Bacon about what I'd seen and he said he believed they were German spies, up to some kind of mischief along the Canadian border. Then about half an hour later you came to the tavern. I saw Room sneak out to the head of the stairs and listen to your conversation with Jones when you registered. That gave me an idea. It was you they were watching the road for."
Barnes held up his hand for silence. "Listen," he said in a low voice. "I will tell you who they were looking for." As briefly as possible he recounted his experience with the strange young woman at the cross-roads. "From the beginning I have connected this tragedy with the place called Green Fancy. I'll stake my last penny that they have been hanging around here, waiting for the arrival of that young woman. They knew she was coming and they doubtless knew what she was bringing with her. What do you know about Green Fancy?"

He was vastly excited. His active imagination was creating all sorts of possibilities and complications, deceptions and intrigues.
Bacon was the one who answered. "People live up there and since we've been here two or three men visitors have come down from the place to sample our stock of wet goods. I talked with a couple of 'em day before yesterday. They were out for a horseback ride and stopped here for a mug of ale."
"Were they foreigners?" inquired Barnes.
"If you want to call an Irishman a foreigner, I'll have to say one of them was. He had a beautiful brogue. The other was an American, I'm sure. Yesterday they rode past here with a couple of swell-looking women. I saw them turn up the road to Green Fancy."
The arrival of four or five men, who stamped into the already crowded hallway from the porch outside, claimed the attention of the quartette. Among them was the doctor who they were soon to discover, was also the coroner of the county. A very officious deputy sheriff was also in the crowd.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.
No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.
If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

WORSE THAN DEADLY POISON GAS
Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. It attacks young and old alike. In early cases the victim is warned of the approaching danger. Nature fights back. Headache, indigestion, insomnia, lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, pain in the joints and lower abdomen, difficulty in urinating, all are indications of trouble brewing in your kidneys.
When such symptoms appear you will almost certainly find quick relief in GOLD MEDAL Healer Oil Capsules. This famous old remedy has stood the test for two hundred years in helping mankind to fight off disease.
It is imported direct from the home laboratories in Holland, where it has helped to develop the Dutch into one of the sturdiest and healthiest races in the world, and it may be had at almost every drug store. Your money promptly refunded if it does not relieve you. Be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL Brand. In sealed packages, three sizes.

CHRIST OUR SAVIOR.
An inventor called upon a capitalist to interest him in a certain machine which he had devised. He described the mechanism at length, but he must needs use technical terms with which the man of money was not familiar. At the end of the interview the capitalist, who had been listening with a frown, said: "I'll come again" the next time he was armed with blue prints, elevations, diagrams, equations and what not, which he spent on the matter.
The capitalist made progress, but as the matter was intricate, he was not yet entirely satisfied. The indefatigable man of genius said: "Never mind! I'll set down on the polished top of the banker's table a working model, of burnished brass and steel, and starter it in motion with a storage battery. Before the capitalist's eyes the machine worked, producing in miniature the results which had been described in detail and in diagram.
The same is the parable of the progressive revelation of God to man. First Oral: God at sundry times kept speaking to the patriarchs and prophets. Then the written revelation. Scripture was given by inspiration of God. But the conclusion and climax of the whole course of revelation was the Working model of Jesus Christ. He is the Son of Man; the ideal man, containing all possible human excellencies without any defects. "The good Paragon," that is what Christ meant the appearance of Jesus Christ, the consummate fact of human history, his acts and words of supreme importance. The culture which does not include Christ is its own condemnation and refutation. It carries the seed of its own death and decay in its very bosom. On the other hand the civilization which does take account of Jesus Christ and bases itself on him is destined to prevail. It has the deathless truth of God as the pillar of its guidance. It cannot go astray. It must reach the highest good for each and every age has aspired, this acceptance of Christ must not be merely theoretical, nor a matter of verbal creed, however correct, but a working out of the truth of the individual human life, character, conduct, speech and deed.
Again, this is not a matter of humanity in mass, but of the person, the individual. The life of the highest individual, Jesus Christ, is the pattern of the life of every individual. Peter, James and John and the others in personal relation to Jesus. Andrew and John eureka Jesus, then Peter and Nathaniel the next day. Eureka! "We have found," what a word to conjure by!

The Congressional Library, one of the three largest in the world, was in the building from the most capacious, convenient and beautiful of all. But the artistic splendor helps no one to find a book on its hundred miles of shelves. It is the card index of the world, the life-line picture of the superlatively vast and comprehensive idea. One stands lost in wonder before it. Who by searching can find him out? The most marvelous thing in the world is that Jesus Christ is the card index of God. In him and through him we find not the attributes, thoughts and purposes of the Deity alone, but the life of the Father in the person of his Son, who is God manifest in flesh.

Getting The Last Wear From Old Casings

Lengthening The Tire's Road To The Scrap Heap

CONSIDERING THE HIGH TIRE PRICES prevailing, it is natural that one should seek to prolong the usefulness of every casing and run it to the bitter end—the moment of final, irreparable blowing out. When there is reason to believe that, through age or long service, the fabric of a certain casing has become dangerously weak, it is a very common practice to reinforce the deteriorated materials by placing a reliner inside it. Sometimes, the weak spots are localized and then inside blow out patches (which can be made from discarded casings, as a matter of economy), are inserted to reinforce them, instead of complete reliners. In the case of a shoe, the tread of which has come off or been worn out in spots, the tread of these portions will soon wear through in service and a blow out will occur. Sometimes it may be worth while to apply a faced on outside protector or blow out patch over a treadless portion of the casing, if this is not too large, but if the tread is pretty generally gone, there is not much to be done except to let the fabric stand road wear as long as it will and scrap the casing when it blows out. Retreading of old tires is unprofitable and in fact it is seldom, if ever, advisable except in the case of an almost new shoe, the tread of which has been injured by wheel misalignment or excessive slipping due to abnormal brake applications. When an old casing is being run to destruction, to get from it what little remaining service it has to give, the inner tube used in it should be an old one of little value, as the blowing out of the casing will involve the tube in disaster. Fresh, new tubes seem to tear worse under such circumstances than old, interior tubes which give out with less extensive injuries. When one is wearing out old tires, is the time when the spare tire equipment and the emergency repair equipment are of the most vital importance. With all new tires on the wheels, spare rims and casings are seldom called for, but when getting the last wear out of old shoes, the single spare rim and tire, customarily carried, may well be reinforced by an extra, spare casing.

ABOUT OILING VALVES

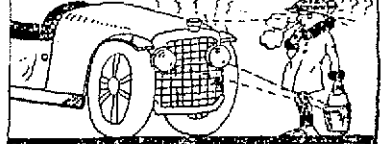

P. G. H. asks: Should the valves of an engine be oiled?

Answer: It would perhaps be a good thing if valves could be oiled slightly. The exhaust valves of many engines receive at least all the oil that is good for them, but some motorists put a little high-test oil in the gasoline to oil the inlet valves and the upper parts of the pistons, but this is seldom done. Valve stems should be kept oiled to reduce the rate at which they wear in their guides. Where the valve mechanism is fully enclosed and a little oil spray is allowed to enter the enclosure from the crank case, valve stems and all parts of the valve gear receive pretty good lubrication, but in the case of exposed valve gears, even though oil is squirted onto the stems from a can, it soon escapes and the valves operate dry. All rocker arms and push-rod ends require frequent oiling.

COOLING SYSTEM QUERY

J. A. M. asks: In very severe cold weather, is it necessary to keep any liquid in the radiator or will the Answer: An engine designed to be water cooled (as most engines are) requires that the radiator, the cylinder jackets and piping should always contain enough liquid to circulate freely. Unless this is the case, heat produced in the cylinder walls by the explosions will accumulate, instead of being taken away by the water, until the cylinders are too hot to operate safely. The cylinder walls, not being exposed to the outside air, it makes no appreciable difference how cold this is. An engine designed to be cooled by air, has means by which air is rapidly circulated around its cylinder walls, just as the cylinders of a water-cooled engine are kept surrounded with moving water. It is best to keep the radiator nearly full, in warm and cold weather alike.

NO MORE DETAILS GIVEN OUT BY U. S. ON MUTINY THREAT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 12.—There are no additional reports at the war department on the situation at Archangel, where a company of American troops involved nearly two weeks ago in a threatened mutiny, refusing to obey orders to entrain for the fighting lines until appealed to by their regimental commander.

Absence of news since the report made public last night after an Associated Press dispatch from Archangel had described the incident, was regarded as a favorable sign.

It was assumed that had the "general mutiny" which the members of Stewart, the American commander, this one company said would develop, would have found means to rush unless prompt assurances came from through a report.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

These are economical days and thus the Ford car becomes a more intense necessity than ever before, because by reason of its universal service it has become a large part in the "business of living," besides, it takes less money for operation and maintenance than any other motor car. That this is not an idle boast is proven by the fact that there are more than two million Fords in daily service. More conclusive evidence of your need of a Ford car could not be given. Here it is, a daily necessity that is a daily economy. A variety of bodies to meet the variety of demand—from the "snappy" Runabout to the de luxe Sedan—and, buy when you can get delivery, for production is behind the demand all the time. Place your order at once.

Runabout, $500.00; Touring Car, $525.00; Chassis, $475.00; Town Car, $750.00; One-Ton Truck Chassis, $550.00. These prices f. o. b. Detroit.

BALL FUND STILL 'WAY SHY---ANTE UP!

By George McManus.

MUCH CASH POSTED ON GAME HERE TOMORROW

OH, VERY WELL!

This telegram came this a. m.: K. L. Eagon, Sporting Editor,
Janesville Gazette.
No grounds available here. Play
Janesville twenty-fourth. All O. K.
E. W. Gayby.

(By K. L. EAGON.)
The writer heard from a friend of weather. Saturday still had an overcast appearance, but the official forecast was "Fair and Warmer," and if the weatherman keeps his promise, there should be a record crowd out tomorrow for the game between the Janesville Hopefuls and the Black-hawks. Play will start promptly at 2:30 p. m. There will be fast practice by both teams beginning at 1:30 p. m. The widely-known and most efficient J. A. Murphy again will officiate as umpire.

The Janesville last night secured the services of James Goodwin, infielder of considerable local repute. Goodwin, it is believed, will be the logical man to fill the gap in the Janesville lineup. He will be sent to play tomorrow, and likely will be given a regular berth with the team. It's up to him, and reports are that he will deliver.

More must be said of young Dopp.
The Janesville whirlwind first scur-ried looked like ten million yen in practice Friday night. Nothing went past him and he hit and ran the bases like mad.

Just who will start the game tomorrow against the Blackhawks has not been decided by Manager Eagon, and will not be announced until the game starts at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Black may be sent back. Elwood may start. Vinye might have a chance to open fire on the Hawks.
And then perhaps Mr. Menzel may be sent in. Or there may be a dark horse.

There has been much speculation and more betting as to the outcome of Sunday's game. The Hawks' followers are playing the last cent out of their pockets. You fellows want to cop onto some of that easy dough, for there'll be a big celebration in the city, beginning as soon as the last man is out tomorrow afternoon.
The writer again telegraphed Manager Eagon of the Milwaukee All-Stars last night, asking if it would not be possible to play the game Sunday, April 20, in Milwaukee. If Sunday, the Janesville will make themselves a little cash, which they need much just now.

The uniforms have been ordered,
on trust. It is up to the real baseball men, and others, to kick in until they are paid for. And then we need a home plate, some bases, and other things.

Something should be said here about the diamond.
Two weeks ago the Chamber of Commerce was asked to back baseball in Janesville. There was no response. Then the chamber was appealed to, to see that the diamond was put in shape. No response. Then the city was appealed to. Then the county. A deaf ear was found everywhere.

Then a lone horse was hired to try and scrape the grounds. The horse labored an hour or so and demanded five dollars in payment, after hargaining for three for the whole job.

Is this loyalty?
The diamond will be put into shape.
Janesville will have a real baseball team and the fans will be served. DE-SPITE THE FACT THAT APPAR-ENTLY THE ORGANIZERS WOULD SHOULD HAVE THEM BACK TO THE WHEEL ARE THROWING COGS INTO IT.

There will be practice at the fair grounds tonight, starting promptly at 4:30 p. m. and lasting until darkness.
EVERY PLAYER MUST BE
THERE. A final conference will be held prior to clashing with the Hawks tomorrow. Be at the fair grounds some time between 4:30 and 7:30 p.
m. tonight.

The baseball fund stood at $73.75 this morning. This much more is needed.
Shall out!

BRINGING UP FATHER

St. Louis Browns Lack Clean-up Man

The smiling gentleman on the left is Jimmy Burke, manager. Jimmy Austin, above at right, is reaching for an easy grounder. Big George Wellman is seen looking fine over and George Sisler is waiting at the bag for a throw.

(By N. E. BROWN)

When the St. Louis Browns wound up last season in fifth place, critics were agreed that the lack of good old fence busting, leather splitting cleanup hitter was what prevented them from finishing in the well known one-two-three class.

And as the team stacks up now for the coming season it still has this same weak spot.

True, there is George Sisler, second only to Ty Cobb as a star, a 5000 hitter, a brilliant base runner and a star first sacker to give the team a wallop, but George can't be asked to do it all. But with a mighty wallpaper behind him in that batting order to step into a two-bagger or triple when it is most needed, the team would be a formidable outfit.

A close scrutiny of the records of 1918 will show you that the Browns lost many games through lack of a wallpaper when the pitching, fielding and general play was all that could be asked. Mayhap the team, under the management of Jimmy Burke, who makes his real debut this season, will partly overcome that handicap.

Sisler has not yet reached the zenith of his career. He ought to be a little better this year than last.

Burke's hurling staff looks good.

He probably will have at the start of the season, Rothorn, Gallia, Lowder, milk, Koob, Davenport, Cullip, Shocker, Wellman and some others. Wellman hopes to do a comeback and if the tall string does return to his old-time form he will be a big asset.
Billings, Moyer and Severied will give the hurlers good support.

The infield list includes Sisler, Jimmy
Austin, Bronck, Maisel, Johnson,
Gerber and Geddie. Austin, the vet of the list, insists that he is in for another good season at third.

The outfield doesn't include any of the group of great garden stars, but Tobin, Smith, Jacobson, Sloan, Williams and Demmitt ought to give Burke a good steady, fair hitting and fielding trio.

The Browns have ceased to be a joke. They ought to be in the running from the gun to the wire this season.

The fair sex show up, the writer will present each with a souvenir.

GOLDFISH WIN FROM COLTS BY 24 PINS

Clauson's Colts suffered their first defeat in seven games at the Arcade or East Side alleys, last night, when they lost to the highly-touted Goldfish by 24 pins.

The fish opened the evening's activities with an $33 game, which was enough to give them a lead of 97 pins.
The Colts came back strong and grubbed the next two, but could not overcome the big lead.

Kirchoff hit 225 for high score.

The results:

BEAVER BOARD
FOR BETTER WALLS & CEILINGSWhy Live with Cracked Walls and Ceilings
When They're Easily Covered Up

Beaver Board will cover them up for all time and you'll never have the job to do again. While Beaver Board is doing away with the danger of falling plaster it is covering up old dingy wall paper on walls and ceilings and giving you an ideal surface for painting and decorating.

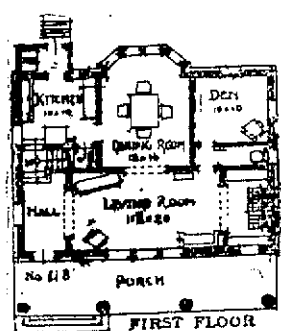

Many an old homestead has been revived with this knotless, crackless manufactured lumber. Room after room has been made over—one at a time if you please—without muss or litter. Beaver Board is real lumber. It is built up into large panels from the strong, pure fibres of the spruce tree. Each panel is treated with the patented Sealite process which prevents warping. If you need to build or re-build, restore or enlarge ask us how you will profit by using Beaver Board.

FIFIELD LUMBER COMPANYHome of Character---No. 118

The charm of this eight-room home is partly the large front porch with its columns and shadows. The broad, sweeping roof lines and the low, flat lined dormer make an exterior that is very picturesque.

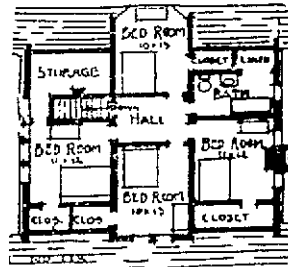

While only 34x27, this house contains on the second floor four bedrooms and the bath, besides a large storeroom. On the first floor the living room is a feature with the arched alcoves at either end for the fireplace nook and the hall. Front and back stairs are provided and the travel from kitchen to front door is minimized.
